FORTNITE

Top Tip!

The Battle Bus horn will honk as soon as you're able to drop from it onto the map below but resist the urge to join the crowd of players who leap from it asap. Instead wait until there's about 3 seconds to go before the Battle Bus reaches the end of its flight path, then leap out. You'll have little to no players to compete with for landing spots, which means there's a smaller chance of getting caught. Aim towards a house or structure when you're gliding as there's a high chance of a chest being inside it, or at the very least some basic loot. Just hit the roof with your pickaxe to get in. Speaking of the glider...

When you're plummeting down from the Battle Bus, there is no way to make your glider deploy later as it automatically opens when you reach a certain height over the ground below. That's all there is to it. It only folds up once you've landed, so just stay patient and make a beeline for the nearest structure.

WHAT PEOPLE THINK ABOUT RAT BURGER

David Walliams really gave it his all, portraying a comedic villain and being the most entertaining part of the whole film. Without him the film will have been very basic and dull. His whole plan seems quite unique and can be a little gross.

Most the other actors are okay, not really given much to do or say. The main girl is never given much development or either is the rat. We never learn why the rat can dance or where it even came from. Overall, the film needed a lot more time to develop the story or the characters and motivations. It is mostly harmless and does have some fun elements.

It is really funny- I would compare it to Roald Dahl. My favourite character is Alfie because despite caring for his dad because his dad is disabled. Despite being poor and living on freebies from Raj's shop, he still lives life happily on always looks on the bright side.
